Historical Enquiry
-Understand why and how questions	-Understands questions such as who, why, when, where & how
- Asks who, what, when & how	-Ask questions to find out more & to check understanding of what has been said	-Ask closed questions to find out more about the past (Who was that? What year was this?)	-Ask more open-ended questions to reflect on the past (What was it like for people in...? Why did they ...?)	-Begin to use evidence to ask questions & find out more about the past	-Reflect upon varied evidence sources to ask varied questions & build a more detailed picture about the past	-Devise historically valid questions about historical periods	-Devise historical questions about change, cause, similarities/ differences, and significance relating to the period studied	-Pursue historically valid enquiries including some they have framed
-Question and explain why things happened	-Engage in non-fiction books to find out more	-Answer questions using an information source ( books or pictures)	-Answer questions using reference to a specific source (such as an information book or picture)	-Begin to use research skills to find out about a time period studied -Use +1 source of evidence to provide a more detailed answer about the past	-Use a variety of sources to improve research and use them to build detailed pictures -Distinguish between primary and secondary sources	- Compare two different forms of evidence for their suitability -Make informed choices and analyse 1+ source of evidence in order to justify claims about the past in a written response	-Analyse a wide range of evidence in order to justify claims about the past -Bring knowledge gathered from several sources together in a fluent account, giving 1+ reason to support a historical argument	- Create relevant, structured and evidentially supported accounts
		-Show some understanding of how people find out about the past	-Show understanding of how evidence is collected & used to make historical facts & find out about the past	-Begin to consider 'What is a suitable source of evidence?'	-Begin to understand that historians make informed choices about relevant sources to tell us about the past	-Appreciate how historical artefacts have helped us understand more about British lives	-Understand that no single source of evidence gives the full answer to questions about the past	-Understand how different types of sources are used rigorously to make historical claims
